Subject: RE: ATTORNEY CLIENT PRIVILEGE Oregon 303(d) list review and ocean acidification

Steve,

Thanks for your response. I think it would be good for you to keep this one based on your work on the prior litigation and familiarity with the OA issue. I am glad you are offering to keep it. Tom's listing portfolio is growing as issues arise with some regularity. Heidi is there as a resource but she has passed on the assignment to Tom. So, I think he is getting a good exposure to the listing issues. That said, if your other work increases and you need to pass this one on at some point, Tom will be here. Thanks for offering to keep this assignment. Lee

I would prefer to keep as much of my water portfolio as possible (and resist accretion into CCILO), but I wondered when Tom picked up the new listing case that listing was only part of my portfolio as a temporary measure.

On the particulars of this Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5
Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5 As result of the briefing, it seemed that it would just be a matter of time anyway.

I feel familiar enough with the subject matter to continue to handle it with some confidence, but if this seems like it would fit well with Tom's development as an OGC attorney, then I am OK to shift it over to him as well.

Do you want to continue working on this issue? Or do you want Tom to pick it up?

Hello, Steve. Welcome back ☺ Just want to give you a heads up that OA may be Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5 There is a NOAA study from 2014 that found that a significant percentage of pteropods in the ocean off of California, Oregon, and Washington are not forming their shells due to high aragonite saturation levels. Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

Attorney Client / Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

I'll send you the briefing paper if you like when its done. If there is someone else in OGC that I should be coordinating with, let me know. Ciao.
